Welcome!

Serve Philadelphia is an initiative of the Office of Civic Engagement and Volunteer Service (OCEVS). OCEVS was founded in 2010 after the City of Philadelphia received a Cities of Service leadership grant. In 2016, the office was moved to the Managing Director's Office (MDO).

The Kenney Administration has made it a top priority to uplift policy objectives through civic engagement. OCEVS works to decrease barriers to engagement, provide engagement and education opportunities, and serve as a first point of contact for Philadelphians who want to become more involved.

This book is a guide to City services and other essential resources in Philadelphia. Use it to discover what Philadelphia has to offer.

Community Education

The community engagement division implements programs to increase civic and community engagement throughout Philadelphia.

Civic Engagement Academy: A free course teaching residents how to engage with and navigate through city government

CEA 2.0: Advanced civic engagement training designed to prepare residents who are already engaged in their communities to take the next step toward becoming community leaders, organizers, and activists.

Government 101: A civics crash course covering the role, structure, and impact of federal, state, and local governments.

Goal Setting & Planning Workshop: A workshop that teaches techniques for developing goals and planning strategies to achieve them.

Youth Aid Panel Program

Youth Aid Panels (YAP) provide a community-based alternative to prosecution for first-time, juvenile offenders of non-violent crimes. A juvenile who completes the obligations can avoid the consequences of a criminal record. In 2016, the program's 26 panels made up of more than 150 volunteers, heard almost 300 cases. That means hundreds of young people completed the YAP program, bettered themselves, and about 90 percent of them remain arrest free.

If you are interested in volunteering to be a Youth Aid Panelist, contact Lisa Harvey, Chief of the Office's Juvenile Unit at lisa.p.harvey@phila.gov or by calling 215-686-9579.
